What is The Housing Forum?

A message from Jeffrey Adams, Chairman of The Housing Forum

As we mark our 2nd decade as The Housing Forum there has arguably never been a more critical time for housing.

Looking to the future the role of The Housing Forum is to promote solutions for funding and development of housing that are practical and informed by the industry. We represent all interests, from design through to construction, maintenance, repair and long term management. We want to play our part in supporting our member organisations as we deal with the impact of huge change in the sector.

Our offer for members has doubled this year and we have held subscription levels at 2008 rates so that as members you can get the most from networking, working parties, task groups and excellence tools.

Since the beginning of 2009 we have operated as our own company, made possible by a strategic relationship with NHBC.

What The Housing Forum Does:

- 🏠 The Housing Forum is a member led cross-housing industry organisation representing all interests in the house building and renovation industry
- 🏠 The Housing Forum is a company limited by guarantee, funded by members and commissions from public sector agencies
- 🏠 The Housing Forum voices the industry's proposals for improvement - recent initiatives have been "The Code for Sustainable Refurbishment", "The Housing Forum Kitemark for long term management and investment value" and our proposals for "Sustainability Appraisals"
- 🏠 The Housing Forum is an effective networker, helping members engage with advanced organisations to gain business and performance insights
- 🏠 The Housing Forum is a national organisation and supports members through Regional Conferences, Regional Industry Leaders' Workshops, and Construction Legacy Fairs
- 🏠 The Housing Forum raises the profile of its members who have the opportunity to showcase their best practice throughout the industry
